Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Looking Backwards When I was about three miles from home, I heard some one call, Halloo. I looked about but could see no one. Soon the call was repeated, followed by my name. I then saw a man s head sticking out of the bushes near me, and upon investigation found it was my partner, James Comstock,6 a free state man who was too outspoken regarding his abolition views. A pro slavery military company had been organized in Easton during our absence, headed by Capt. Marsh Comstock, a citizen of the town, and my partner had been run out of Easton the night before - Saturday night - and was in hiding. He told me it was worth my life to go on to town; that I was pro scribed. I made light of his warning, but he insisted that I join him in the brush. As I was about to continue my journey, he called my attention to a party on horseback on the brow of a hill at some distance, and said that was the party that was hunting for me, and that I had better take his advice. I took to the brush at once. I was ill, and as soon as I could picked my way to Josh Turner s house and went to bed. My wife was in great trouble about me. John M. Gallagher, who had promised me to look after her wants during my absence, tried to induce her to eat her meals, which she refused to do. On Sunday she went a half mile up the road to the boarding-house of Tom Minard, thinking that if we came that way she...
