Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Alienation of the Educated Class From Politics: An Aration Before the Phi Beta Kappa Society at Cambridge, June 29, 1876 Been within the scope of our American institutions to produce such a man as the late Count Montalembert, coupling the courage and address of a great orator with the religious enthusiasm of a monk, delighting to look at politics as primarily the means of realizing spiritual results, a genuine fi/s a es croz ses amid the fierce debates of the French Assembly; nor such a man as Gladstone, faulty perhaps as a mere party leader, but treading with no unequal step after Pitt and Peel as a parliamentary debater, and surpassing both in the comprehensiveness of his range and the earnestness of his moral conviction, habitually look ing at politics in the light of man s largest relations as an immortal being, disowned by Oxford when most truly faithful to Oxford s earliest traditions. That memorable measure which taxed his distinctive capa bilities as an original legislator, and elicited the most transcendent exhibition of his oratory, was a prob lem with which no American statesman could be called to deal. And who supposes, for a moment, that the ordinary discipline which a public career with us supplies would qualify one of our party lead ers, after laying down the cares of office, to discuss, as Mr. Gladstone has recently discussed, the ques tions to which the novel assumptions of the Vatican have given such added significance. If the separa tion of church and state that obtains with us has helped religion, it has certainly narrowed the range and weakened the motive of political action.
