Excerpt from The Fighting Twentieth: History and Official Souvenir of the Twentieth Kansas Regiment The regiment left the Philippines for home on the 3d of September, 1899, just six months after it was entitled to be discharged from service under the act of Congress. The greater part of the engagements above mentioned were fought, and most of the losses of life were incurred, at a time when there was no obligation for further service resting upon the members of the regiment, except that which was self-imposed upon them by their own love of country and their determination to maintain the right full sovereignty of the United States and the honor of its flag.
