By William Henry Carr

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Part I, Trailside Conversations; Part II, Report for 1929: The Nature Trails and Trailside Museum at Bear Mountain, 1929 The Nature Trails and the Trailside Museum, maintained by the American Museum of Natural History, in cooperation with the Commissioners of the Palisade Interstate Park at Bear Mountain, New York, have been visited by more than people since 1927. Many other organizations throughout the United States have seen the value and the importance of this form of nature education and support similar projects, all with the one purpose of stimulating a more lively and lasting interest in the out-of-doors on the part of the American public. The dwellers of cities are turning their eyes, their steps and their mental perceptions to the woods, the fields, and the streams. In ever increasing numbers they are availing themselves of the many opportunities that enable them to spend hours in the open. State and National Parks, City Parks, and Country Parks are all being used by the often mentioned, but little understood, general public, who have learned to journey from the crowded centers...
