Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Charities of London: Comprehending the Benevolent, Educational, and Religious Institutions, Their Origin and Design, Progress, and Present Position The endeavour has been to render, under each institution, a distinct and full account, abstracted from the general connexion running throughout, so as for all purposes of reference to require the perusal of such account alone. On the one hand, this variety of sources from whence the information is obtained, numbering, in publications alone, five hundred, all requiring careful consideration, will secure some allowance for inadvertent errors and omissions; and on the other, the desire to render the information distinct, will account for much of the desultory character of the work as a composition. Beyond these sources from whence the materials of the work have been derived, the author s acknowledgments are specially due to the assistance he has had rendered him in the course of his inquiries by personal friends, and by the secretaries of several of the societies: and it is gratifying to be able to recur to the rarity of instances he has met with of disinclination to afford the required particulars. The plan of the present work, it is well to add, has been chiefly founded upon two little publications, which may be well termed its pioneers. The first, compiled in 1836, with the assistance of John Brownlow, Esq., entitled, A Pocket Guide to the Charities of London. - The second, an enlargement of the same work, and published in 1844, under the title of The Metropolitan Charities, compiled by the present writer.
