Carl Brecht, an anthropologist, returns to Nepal with his daughter, Kathy, to attend a convention involving the Paramedic Training of Shamans. They don't expect to become entangled with conspirators, who assassinate the royal family and their guests at a dinner party on June 1, 2001, an actual historical event. The setting of this mystery and adventure novel begins with domestic stress in a Chicago suburb, where Carl lives with his wife, Barbara, and their two children, Kathy and Mark. Their problems are minor compared with the strife taking place at the royal palace in Kathmandu during a time of severe political unrest and economic instability. Carl intends to depart on a flight from O'Hare Field with Kathy the day after her high school graduation party on May 21st. He has been married to Barbara for 24 years and is reluctant to leave her behind since she's feeling abandoned from the empty nest syndrome. Barbara is worried about Carl and Kathy traveling to Nepal where Maoist terrorists have been systematically taking over the police stations. Their older son, Mark, who is studying for finals at the university, also plans to leave for a summer job in Colorado. There's more stress for the Brecht family when Barbara's parents, Sam and Renee Havlett, arrive a week prior to the hectic graduation. Carl and Kathy eventually reach Kathmandu during the peak of the monsoon season. After checking into the Kathmandu Guest House, Carl discovers that Margaret Porter has hired shamans to perform exorcisms to liberate her youngest son's soul from demonic possession. Christopher was five-years-old when he was murdered in the garden of the hotel when Margaret was fleeing from a...
